Hello everyone, I found the Thermoelectric mini fridge in the landfill a couple of weeks ago, and so far I was disappointed with how cold it was getting so I figured I'd replace the peltier chip with a higher power one, the original ran at only 12v with 60watts, but the new uses 16v and 192 watt, so unfortunately when I switched the chips the fridge makes a clicking noise presumably from drawing a lot. questions that I have, how can I build or cheaply get a variable (it would be nice to control the power) 16v 12amp power or change the existing board to bring out more energy, would it be a problem to run the refrigerator without the load attached to the previous 12v power, and it is necessary to replace the fans with higher power ones? any other advice would be very grateful, thanks in advance :) It would be great to be able to leave your work area during a break without waiting for breaks, emergencies or loud letters.
